AMERICAN EAGLE AIRLINES LAUNCHES NEW INTER-ISLAND ROUTE

TORTOLA – American Eagle, the regional affiliate of American Airlines, will introduce a new service between Tortola and Antigua, effective June 1. The flight will operate each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday using a 64-seat Super ATR aircraft.

This new service will provide improved inter-island connections for the many visitors who travel to the Caribbean and would like to experience the beauty and flavor that these destinations have to offer.

“The new service further demonstrates our commitment to develop the market and our continued support of the islands and its people,” said Ed Criner, President – Executive Airlines, an American Eagle division.

“We have worked closely with both Chief Minister Dr. Orlando D. Smith of Tortola in the British Virgin Islands, as well as Prime Minister Winston Baldwin Spencer of Antigua and Barbuda. We appreciate their commitment to continue to grow their economies,” said Pedro Fábregas, Vice President – Sales, Marketing and Planning for Executive Airlines.

Customers arriving in Antigua from London will be able to connect to the British Virgin Islands.
